IN THE SPECIFICATION

Please substitute the following paragraph for the paragraph that is in the specification at page 25, lines 10-18:

91
In one application of the system of the invention, patient performance is measured for a diet and exercise regimen prescribed by the physician. The system of the invention stores all test information for a patient in relational databases 550. The historical data is used to produce second processed data or a "report card" - proof of the success or failure of the plan. The regular feedback and increased understanding of the goals and their relationship to system obtained data will be the basis for motivation and improved health management.
